Northern Virginia Financial Planner Named One of the Best for Doctors
*Glenn Kautt, CFP[®], EA, AIFA[®] selected in Medical Economics Magazine's Top 150

McLean, VA (November 30, 2008) – In a season of financial upheaval for all investors, Medical Economics magazine has released its biannual list of “The 150 Best Financial Advisers for Doctors.” The magazine selected Glenn Kautt, CFP[®], EA, AIFA[®], president of The Monitor Group, Inc. in McLean, VA, for the third consecutive time in its November 2008 issue.

Medical Economics' Leslie Kane wrote of the economic turbulence, “If there was ever a time when doctors needed financial advice, that time is now.” The magazine compiled the list by evaluating each adviser on a range of criteria, including: knowledge and credentials, experience, fee arrangements, and good standing with the SEC. Kautt was one of only three advisers selected in Northern Virginia, and one of six chosen from the Washington, DC metro area.

Regarding their selection of the Top 150 from hundreds of nominated candidates for this year's list, Kane wrote, “We also gave an extra nod to those who specialize in physician business or the medical field.” As part of his commitment to medical professionals, one of Kautt's latest initiatives is launching an educational series for doctors titled “Evidence-Based Investing.” Applying current best evidence practices to investment decisions, the concept is based upon the enormously successful methods of Evidence-Based Medicine.

Kautt comments on his selection, “The Monitor Group's mission includes developing financial security by partnering with our clients to make sound, objective financial decisions. To be recognized by a national magazine for our service to doctors, a profession we care about deeply, is truly an honor.”
